Special Notices.

To the Masters and Owners of Vessels in the Call for Trade.—Much damage has arisen to ships loaded home in San Francisco, and also homeward from ports in the East, as consequence of the dampness or "sweating" of the holds, particularly between decks. This has been the case with some of the finest ships out of port, and is supposed to be caused by imperfect sealing.

The ventilators used in most of our Clipper Ships do good service, but are not sufficient for the protection of cargo between decks, and some improvement on the present arrangement is required.

The Master-owners of New-York respectfully request that a more severe attention may be given to the ventilation of vessels on all their voyages, and also to the proper stowage of cargo, using sufficient space, not only in the lower hold, but also between decks, that is out of a side port leaking, or water collecting from any cause, it may pass freely to the scuppers.

It is to be apprehended that, with the recent increase in the size of American ships, there has not been a corresponding increase in the size and efficiency of the pumps with which they are furnished. It is hoped that this subject also will claim the attention which it merits in future.

Frenchman, and the Englishman, and the Englishman, Prof.
Nixon and Western Children; splendid Equitation, &c., &c.
It is a day but a satisfaction has to express our esteem for his character and our deep regret that he should have had this suddenly cut off when he had just now, and eminent step in what would have been his career.

Reacted. That to those whom clear relations and a nearer infinite time must have caused to feel his loss more deeply, we tender our east and warm sympathies.

As a young and promising badge of mourning was worn by the members of this class; and that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to his family, and published in the daily papers.

PERVIAN FEBRILE.—For the Prevention and Cure of FEVER, RIVER COMPLAINTS, JAUNDICE, DUMBE AGUE, BISPERRIA, NEVROUS HEADACHE, ENLARGEMENT OF THE SPLEEN, and all the different forms of bilious diseases. This preparation is intended especially as a remedy for the prevention and cure of bilious fevers, and for the removal of other forms of disease, such as bilious intermittent and remittent fevers, dumb ague, jaundice, &c. It is a simple preparation, and is easily digested, and easily removed to the system, and is a powerful, if not a specific, but a satisfactory cure for a bilious fever, and no need be taken but a small quantity, and no fear need be entertained of its being retained in the system, as it is composed partly of all vegetable and have been found to be of great service to those who have been affected with bilious fevers.

Reacted. In all cases where bilious or remittent fevers prevail, this remedy will be found invaluable, and no person traveling through, or residing in infected districts should be without it.

Read the following testimony:

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 1853.

Messrs. A. B. & S. SMITH.—Gentlemen—We have been the poor people affected with fever and ague, and living in a district where there has constantly exposed to repeated attacks. I tried the most approved remedies for the cure of the complaint, and found them of no avail. I then applied your preparation, and found it perfectly successful. It has removed all my symptoms as well as my fear of the disease, and has been alone induced me to leave the district where I resided.

I have cured all of my children, affected the same way as myself, and have left no child but a healthy one.

As a physician, I am happy to say the very first dose did not much good, and less than one-half entirely broke up the chills, restored the appetite, and removed the fever.
